

2006 Florida SBIR Conference Series

SBIR/STTR R&D Support for Life Sciences and Advanced Technology

Conference Objectives

The conference will provide guidance to small businesses, economic development professionals and other business service providers on how to take advantage of this unique program opportunity, including instruction on the preparation of SBIR proposals, and assistance on how to identify R&D opportunities in the federal government and at university and federal labs. Workshop instructors along with the SBIR/STTR Program Managers will provide their agency overview and information on eligibility requirements.

Representatives from the Florida Small Business Development Center Network, BioFlorida and the Florida High Tech Corridor Council will augment the agenda with guidance and information on how they can assist small businesses to establish joint research relationships with universities, preparing business plans, contracting requirements, the mentor-protégé program and other related topics.
